There were twelve gods, each one extraordinary,
and they lived high up on beautiful Mount Olympus,
the tallest mountain in Greece.

They fought huge beings called Titans and Giants, wild beasts and monsters, taking them captive and throwing them deep into dungeons in the bowels of the earth.

These twelve became masters of the world, ruling the land, the seas and the skies.

In the beginning there was nothing, just thick, dark blackness. No night, no day, no sound.
Out of this blackness Mother Earth was born.
Her name was Gaia.

From Gaia all life was created: the land and the mountains, the seas and the skies.
She created the trees and the plants to grow on her land, and the sun and the stars to shine in the heavens.

The twelve gods of Ancient Greece lived high on Mount Olympus and from there they ruled the world.

Easy to understand and illustrated with humor, these classic Greek stories will delight
and inform young readers, making learning fun!
