

BOOKTALKS - QUICK AND SIMPLE - 1/12/2003

Monique likes to be different. But it sure is hard to be different when you go to a school where all the students have to wear uniforms. But Monique is determined. One day, she comes to school wearing a big red hat. The next day, all the other students come in wearing hats. She tries glasses -- the other kids wear glasses. Shoes, socks, nail polish. Whatever she tries, the others just do the same thing the next day. Will Monique ever find a way to be unique? (by Nancy Keane)